BIOGRAPHY OF WILLIAM HENRY DRUMMOND
(1854-1907)

William Henry Drummond, dialect poet and physician, was born April 13, 1854, at Currawn House, near Mohill, County Leitrim, Ireland, the son of George Drummond (originally Drumm), officer of the Royal Irish Constabulary, and of Elizabeth Morris Soden. In 1856, the Drummond family moved to Tawley near the "Three Sisters" mountains and the Bay of Donegal, where they lived at Tawley Manor House. Drummond's three brothers, John, George, and Tom were born here. Paddy McNulty, the teacher at the village school became Drummond's life-long friend. At this time, Drummond learned the art of fishing which he practised throughout his life. In 1863, the Drummond family moved back to Mohill. The next year, they moved to Montreal, Canada, where the father died eighteen months later. Drummond attended Montreal High School which he left at the age of fifteen to take up the study of telegraphy. He was first stationed as a telegrapher at Bord-à-Plouffe, in 1869. During the six summers he worked there, he came into contact with the French-Canadian woodsmen and farmers whose broken English he imitated so well in his unique poetry. After completing high school, Drummond entered McGill University in 1878, to study medicine. Distinguishing himself more in athletics than in the classroom (he was at one time the Canadian amateur champion of "fast-walking"), he failed McGill in his second year. In the fall of 1883, Drummond camped at Silver Lake when he visited Dr. George Nelson, grandson of Wolfred Nelson and medical practitioner at Marbleton, Dudswell Township, and he established a friendship with Rev. Thomas Shaw Chapman, a pioneer known as "Pastor of the Uplands". He also camped at Clear Lake near Marbleton where he established a friendship with Major John Weyland, his brother, Charles, and his sister. Drummond resumed his studies at Bishop's Medical School, Bishop's College, in Montreal, and graduated with the M.D. degree in 1884. He also delivered the valedictory address of the graduating class. His first medical appointment was house surgeon at Western Hospital. He then set up practice in Stornoway, near Lake Megantic. In 1885, he moved to Knowlton to take over the practice of the retiring physician. In 1888, he returned to Montreal where he set up his practice and residence in St. Antoine Street. In this period, Drummond became interested in the breeding and showing of Irish Terriers, which resulted in the establishment of the Kinkora Kennels on the St. Maurice River in Northern Quebec. He also became president of the Montreal Kennel Club and the Irish Terrier Club of Canada, and was a member of the Canadian Kennel Club, the Canadian Fox Terrier Club, and the Irish Terrier Club of America. His hunting and fishing interests led to his association with the Laurentian Club. In 1893, Drummond became engaged to May Isobel Harvey, also a burgeoning writer, whom he married on April 18 of the following year, at Savannah la Mar, Jamaica, the birthplace of his bride. They established their residence at 294 Mountain Street (now number 1181) in Montreal. At this time, Drummond occupied the chair of medical jurisprudence at Bishop's College Medical School. In 1896, the Drummonds moved their residence to St. Catherine Street, where they remained for six years. Here three sons were born to Drummond: the first dying a few hours after birth, the second, Barclay, born in 1896, and William Harvey ("Billy"), born in 1901 and died in 1904. Barclay ("Boochus") became a lieutenant in the Fifth Royal Highlanders Regiment of Canada, attended the Thomas School of Aviation, and became a pilot in the Royal Naval Air Service, a Captain in the Royal Air Force, and an instructor at the R.A.F. School of Aerial Fighting at Beamsville, Ontario. Barclay died in 1933. Drummond's fourth child, Moira, was born in 1904. In 1902, Drummond journeyed to England, Scotland, and Ireland. He bought mining property ("Drummond Mines") with his brothers at Cobalt, Kerr Lake, Ontario in 1905. In 1906, Drummond's mother died. In the spring of the following year, he made his last journey to Cobalt to assist in the smallpox outbreak in the mining camp; he himself suffered a stroke which caused paralysis, and on April 6, 1907, he died of cerebral haemorrhage. He was buried from St. George's Church, in the Mount Royal Cemetary, Montreal.

Drummond's published works include The Habitant (1897); Phil-O-Rum's Canoe and Madeleine de Verchères (1898); Johnnie Courteau (1901); The Voyageur (1905); The Great Fight (1908), published posthumously and containing a biographical sketch of Drummond by his wife; and Poetical Works (1912). All were published in New York and London, except The Voyageur, published only in New York. Several were illustrated by Frederick Simpson Coburn. Honours literary and otherwise bestowed on Drummond include an L.L.D. from the University of Toronto (1902), the honorary degree of D.C.L. from Bishop's College (1905), Fellow of the Royal Society of Canada (1899), and Fellow of the Royal Society of Literature of England (1898).

THE DRUMMOND TIN TRUNK

A tin trunk measuring 30 1/2" x 16" x 12" and containing the papers and manuscripts of Dr. William Henry Drummond and some papers and manuscripts of his wife, May Isobel Harvey Drummond, were left, on loan, in the keeping of the Osler Library of McGill University, on April 26, 1948 by Moira Drummond Craig, daughter of W.H. Drummond and wife of Surgeon-Commander D.D. Craig, R.N. On May 8, 1968, Dr. Craig gave permanent rights to the contents of the trunk to the Osler Library.¹

In 1948, a brief inventory was made of the contents of the trunk by Dr. W.W. Francis, Librarian of the Osler Library.² A more detailed listing prepared in 1970 did not include the five books of lecture notes, two scrap-books of clippings, "Barclay pedigree", black note-book, seven miscellaneous books of MS poems, note-book with illustration of "The Habitant", three pocket engagement books, galley proofs, sheaf of typed and penned MSS, correspondence of 1923 re "new edition", box of Kodak plates, and three "Every Day Files". The present listing is meant to be complete.

The items inventoried are listed and shelved in the order in which Dr. Francis has listed them, with minor changes and additions. For example, all correspondence has been grouped into series no. 10, both scrapbooks into series no. 1, and all three "Every Day Files" into series no. 17. The marriage certificate and illustration of "M'Sieu Smit" were removed from the correspondence grouping and listed separately as items no. 21 and 22.

For the 1970 list, all correspondence was removed from the manila

¹Letter to C. Desbarats, Librarian, Osler Library.

²Appended, with series nos. added.

envelopes in which it had been previously stored, arranged in chronological order under the name of the correspondent, and stored in file folders. More correspondence was subsequently found in the "Every Day Files". It is listed in the alphabetical order in which it was found, with no attempt to rearrange the letters in chronological order.

All miscellaneous manuscripts from the "Manila Envelopes" section of Dr. Francis' listing which are not correspondence, have been grouped into series no. 25.

Whenever poems are cited, titles have been taken as written on the manuscript and have not been verified; if no title appears on the manuscript, the first line has been quoted, or the subject of the poem, as far as it could be determined, has been given.

Because of the current interest in Canada in Britain "as the cleanest greenest most attractive colony", he will write a series of letters and articles for Blackwoods , and other papers and magazines. He asks Drummond for some advice on travelling, e.g. which railway line is best, are there any railway privileges to be got, etc. 3-l. (3p.). One blank leaf pinned to first page. At top of p.1. 17.3/170	Letter, 1905, Dec.3, from Neil Munro, Carnus, Gourrock, Scotland, to Drummond. He thanks him for his letter and a copy of The Voyageur in which he thinks Drummond has "caught the curiously mingled spirit of the old and new Voyageur". He notices that his son is as thrilled by this book as he used to be with "Ballantyne the brave ... writer of boys books". Drummond is in Cobalt apparently because his description of it gives rise to: "you cunning rogue - to talk about the animals and the fish and the camp and all the rest of it that seem to me to make your present location more desirable than the ores there do! I could, reading your letter, almost have kicked my desk upside down and taken a ticket for Northern Ontario." He plans to issue a novel about modern Highland life soon. Dr. Drummond's letters to W. H. Parker, the manager and a chief shareholder of the Laurentian Club, whose address was La Pêche camp, Grandes Piles, are chiefly concerned with the fishing and to a much lesser extent, hunting activities at the camp. The letters introduce guests to the camp many of them prominent Canadians, Americans and Englishmen. Letters dated July 5 and July 20, 1896 mention the artist F. S. Coburn, who would like to sketch types living in the vicinity of the camps; another visitor was the poet Archibald Lampman. Many of the letters deal with the club's financial difficulties suggesting drives for new members. Some personal notes include announcement of his engagement and marriage and references to his children. In an August 22, 1898 letter he expresses his pleasure on being selected «Fellow of the Royal Society of Literature, England » and calls it something like the «French Chamber of Literary Horrors». He does refer occasionally to his medical practice and suggests remedies for certain illnesses.

N.B. F.S. Coburn provided illustrations for some of W.H. Drummond's poems
